Memorial Benches policy

Introduction

The Norfolk Archaeological Trust supports the principle of allowing memorial benches on our sites subject to the criteria set out in this document. The Trust recognises that a memorial bench is a way in which a loved one's life can be celebrated while also benefiting other visitors to the place that they loved. The purpose of the policy is to ensure a clear and sympathetic approach to memorial bench applications and memorial bench management. The policy also ensures that memorial benches have a common appearance, style and size, which are appropriate for Trust sites.

Available spaces for memorial benches are limited and will normally be reserved to commemorate people who have either lived in the local community and have had a strong connection with the site, for example, through volunteering. Nominations for a person who does not meet these criteria will still be considered but donors should clearly set out in their application what the past link with the particular site was.

Scheduled monument consent

All Trust sites are scheduled monuments and the installation of each bench will require Scheduled Monument Consent (SMC). The Trust will undertake to apply for and obtain SMC for the proposed bench. Any costs associated with the SMC, such as the fee for providing archaeological supervision of installation, must be covered by the donor.

Type of Bench

The Trust can only consider installation of the type of bench shown below, known as Roy's Memorial Bench.

Please note that small memorial plaques attached to the bench will be permitted [see below]. Carved inscriptions, as seen in the illustration, will not be accepted.

The cost of the bench is £930.00 + VAT.

Purchase of Benches

The donor must purchase the bench from the Harry Stebbing Workshop.

Once the donor has paid for the bench direct, the Trust will liaise with the supplier [and archaeologist where required) to deliver and install the bench in the correct location and position. The delivery and installation may incur an additional cost, which will be agreed with the donor before installation.

Plaque size and inscriptions

An engraved plaque, up to maximum 105mm x 75mm, can be mounted on the bench. Plaque cost and ordering is the responsibility of the donor and is not included in the cost of the bench.

Details of the inscription should be included on the application at Annex A. Due to the settings of the benches and their design, and the size of the plaque, the Trust requests that inscriptions are short and simple, to consist of the name of the person(s) to be commemorated, and relevant dates.

Choosing a location

- Benches will only be placed in positions specified by the Trust (in agreement with Historic England)
- The number of benches will be set by the Trust (in agreement with Historic England)

Available locations for new benches are limited because of the necessity to protect the setting of our monuments and to retain the rural character of our sites. The Trust's priority will be to replace existing benches in need of repair before considering new locations. Potential locations will be discussed with the donor on a case-by case basis

The Trust will always endeavour to keep the bench in the chosen location but reserve the right to move it if the need should arise, although this is likely to be a rare event.

Repair and replacement

- The bench will be maintained by the Trust
- The bench will not be replaced at the end of its useful life, unless the original donor (or relative) wishes to do so at their own expense, or if the site appeals to a new donor

The Trust reserves the right to remove any bench which in its opinion is damaged or beyond economic repair. If this happens the donor will be contacted and given the opportunity to replace the bench; or if this is not desired, given the opportunity to collect the memorial plaque.
